(A). PAGEANT—THE COMING OF SPRING.

A little pageant given by the children of our three villages.

Mary Murphy Doody in charge.

The Story.

Winter and North Wind dance merrily for the People on Earth, who are under their spell. Everything goes well until South Wind and Spring appears in the distance. Winter and North Wind see them first, and fearing the People will desert them for the maidens who are coming, they veil their eyes with a mist of snow and ice, then defiantly await South Wind and Spring.

South Wind and Spring come dancing gaily in and are astonished to find no welcome from the People, until they see Winter, then they know what the trouble is. They call the First Spring Breezes to help them break the spell. But Winter only laughs and chases them away. They call the First Spring Flowers, but they too are powerless and Winter still rules. Then they call the Mischievous Elves, who are very tricky, and afraid of nothing. They see what is wrong, bring in their May-pole (which is magic), and Winter and North Wind have lost their power. The Elves quickly release the People, who now know that Spring is here. They throw off their winter garments, and taking Winter, Spring and North and South Winds with them gaily dance to celebrate the coming of Spring.
